Exclusive Research The ROI on DEI

By Paola Peralta October 26, 2022 10:00 AM 1 Min Read

Of all the lessons companies have learned about the workforce in recent years, one perhaps stands out as the most crystallized: if they want to stay competitive when recruiting, diversity can no longer be an afterthought, but rather must be a primary component of business building and growth. And yet, new and exclusive research from Arizent shows just how many firms are dragging their feet on making any real change. Leaders and employees across banking, accounting, wealth management and other industries share their perspectives on DEI, where it's working, where it's not and what needs to happen to create healthier companies.
